I came up with the project and did all of the background research, hours and hours of it. I spent a solid 20+ hours sourcing, cleaning, and experimenting with different datasets for us to use. I wrote nearly all of the non-modeling code. I wrote at least half of the models, notably those with the architectures that led to breakthroughs in our prediction accuracy bumps. I put together about half of the PowerPoint presentation.